Tevillas Keilim

Utensils that are used in the preparation or consumption of food, and which were once owned by a non-Jew and are now owned by a Jew, must undergo tevillas keilim (ritual immersion in a mikvah) before they can be used. The following is an outline of some of the basic halachos:

Tevillah is only required for items made of metal or glass; e.g., aluminum, cast iron, chrome, pewter, Pyrex, silver, stainless steel, tin, and many other materials. Tevillah is not required for utensils made of cardboard, ceramic, cork, leather, paper, plastic, rubber, stone, Styrofoam, or wood. China should have tevillah without a bracha. Disposable aluminum pans are metal, but, due to their disposability, they do not require tevillah, regardless of how many times they are used.

Tevillah is only required for utensils which have food contact. Therefore, a stovetop grate does not require tevillah, since it never touches food, and neither does the water pan used with a chafing dish, but tevillah is required for a barbecue spit or the food pan used with a chafing dish. The cover of a chafing dish must also undergo tevillah; although it seemingly does not have contact with the “actual” food, it is considered to have food contact because of the considerable amount of steam that rises from the food to the cover.

A glass cake tray requires tevillah, even if the cake is always placed in cupcake holders or on a doily (i.e., never touches the actual tray), because the doily etc. is considered tafel/trivial to the food. A can opener does not have (intentional) food contact, and, therefore, it does not require tevillah. The tray in a toaster oven or microwave, requires tevillah because people put food right onto it, but the chamber of those appliances does not require tevillah since they do not have (intentional) food contact. The following are some other examples of items which have no food contact and therefore do not require tevillah: corkscrew, dishwashing basin, knife sharpener, and napkin ring.

Tevillah is primarily required for utensils that either have contact with food that is “ready to eat” (e.g., flatware, plates), or used to bring the food to the point that it is ready to eat (e.g., pots, pans). If a utensil is intended for use with raw food, but the same item could also be used for meal-ready food, then tevillah should be performed without a bracha. For example, a pair of kitchen scissors purchased for cutting raw meat will not be used with meal-ready food, but since there are others who would buy those scissors for cutting vegetables, tevillah should be performed without a bracha. There is a difference of opinion as to whether tevillah is required at all if the utensil can only be used for raw foods (e.g., meat tenderizer).

Peelers, graters, and food processors which will be used with meal-ready food (e.g., carrots) require tevillah with a bracha. If they will only be used for foods that require further cooking (e.g., potatoes), then tevillah should be performed, but no bracha should be recited. Colanders, skewers, and spatulas are used with food that is fully cooked, and, therefore, they require tevillah with a bracha (assuming they are metal or glass).

Containers used for storage of food, and from which no one ever eats directly, should have tevillah without a bracha.

Rav Gedalia Dov Schwartz, zt”l has ruled that any electrical appliance that might get ruined because of tevillah, is excused from the requirement of tevillas keilim and may be used without tevillah.

The item undergoing tevillah must be free of chatzizos – items that block the water from having direct contact with them. This means that not only must all stickers and labels be removed before tevillah, but the person performing the tevillah should be sure not to grip the item too tightly when it is in the mikvah (for if he does, his hand will be a chatzizah).

The bracha of אשר קדשנו במצותיו וצונו על טבילת כלים is recited before tevillah begins. If more than one person will be performing tevillah, one person can recite the bracha for all the participants.

The following is a list of items which do or do not require tevillah, based on the assumption that the utensil is both used and manufactured in the standard manner. Those which are listed as requiring tevillah are based on the assumption that they are made from metal or glass which requires tevillah, as opposed to plastic, paper, rubber, wood, or other materials which are excused.

The status of some entries of marked with a “1” or a “2” which refers to the following:

1. If a person will only use this utensil for raw food that requires further cooking, tevillah should be performed but no bracha is recited. But if it will be used for both raw and meal-ready food (e.g., many fruits and vegetables), tevillah is performed with a bracha.
2. If the utensil ever has food contact, tevillah is required with a bracha; if the utensil never has food contact, no tevillah is required.
